Atom Bomb emsus USSIA

Lake Success, Oct. 11.—Russia today offered to trade figures with the West on the number of atom bombs in their respective stockpiles, and then vetoed a United States proposal to separate the problem of atomic control from United Nations moves for reducing conventional armaments.

Mr Jacob Malik (Soviet Russia) demanded that the "cards be put on the table for an honest game" when he repeated the Soviet insistence that any census of world arms should include a count of atomic weapons. He then vetoed the American proposal, which would have approved the action of the Conventional Armaments Commission in separating ordinary weapons from atomic arms for the purposes of disarmament discussion. It was Russia's 39th veto in the Council's fouryear history.

The Recognition Problem

A S the Communist forces march daily A nearer to Canton, and the Nationalist Government once again wearily shifts its sent-this time to Chungking, from where there is no further retreat on the mainland—a new era begins in Asia. For better or for worse, China's millions are now ruled by a Communist Government. The revolution has changed the political and strategic face of the Far East, and it is still too early to predict its full consequences. The new rulers of China begin their task better fitted than were their Bolshevist mentors in 1917. They have some experience of administration, and the proclamation of the "People's Government" by Mao Tse-tung was merely the consolidation of an authority they already possessed, an authority born of victory in arms. The task ahead of the Communists is formidable: they have to organise a vast country, not over-endowed with material resources, and badly in nced of trained technicians and administrators. But they have had the opportunity to learn from the experiments and mistakes of the Russians, and by now they must-have evolved a programme to carry them through at least the next few years. From reports reaching Hongkong it is apparent that in their first efforts at administration, at any rate in the cities. the Communists are encountering considerable difficulties. These can be blamed partly on the Nationalist blockade, which is not only preventing them from establishing new industries, but from keeping existing ones going, and partly on the necessity for keeping so many men under arms, which is -- frustrating all attempts to control infintion. Despite these difficulties, and the resentment which is reported to have been aroused by high taxation, there is not yet any real opposition to the new rulers in the areas under their control. To be successful, an opposition must be organised and must have a powerful appeal to the masses. These conditions are both lacking in China today, and there is thus no alternative to Communism. This being so, the Western Powers must consider granting recognition to the "People's Government." The recognition question has been complicated—as was no doubt intended-by Russia's alacrity in - exchanging ambassadors with the new regime. But this should not be allowed to influence the Western Powers' approach to the problem. Recognition does not automatically imply approval of . a government. It merely means the establishment of relations, and of the machinery by which differences of opinion may be resolved and normal business conducted. It is not an endorsement of a government's policy, only an acknowledgment of its existence. The accepted test for recognition in the past has been whether or not a government is firmly established, and whether it is capable of administering the area it controls. To refuse recognition to an established government solves nothingas proved in Spain. The Western Powers must realise this, and quickly decide when and how to establish diplomatic relations with Peklug. Non-recognition will in no way change the Communists'

policy; it will morely put more obstacles in the way of normal trade and business.

YUKON SOLVES HOUSING PROBLEM—Quonset hut, left, and the three-storey log cabin represent diversified housing at Whitehorse, Y.T. This rapidly growing sub-Arctic community is a stopover for Alcan Highway tourists, and a jumping off place into Keno Hill area where men and machinery are being moved in a rush for lead and silver. Lead prices have jumped because of a world shortage.

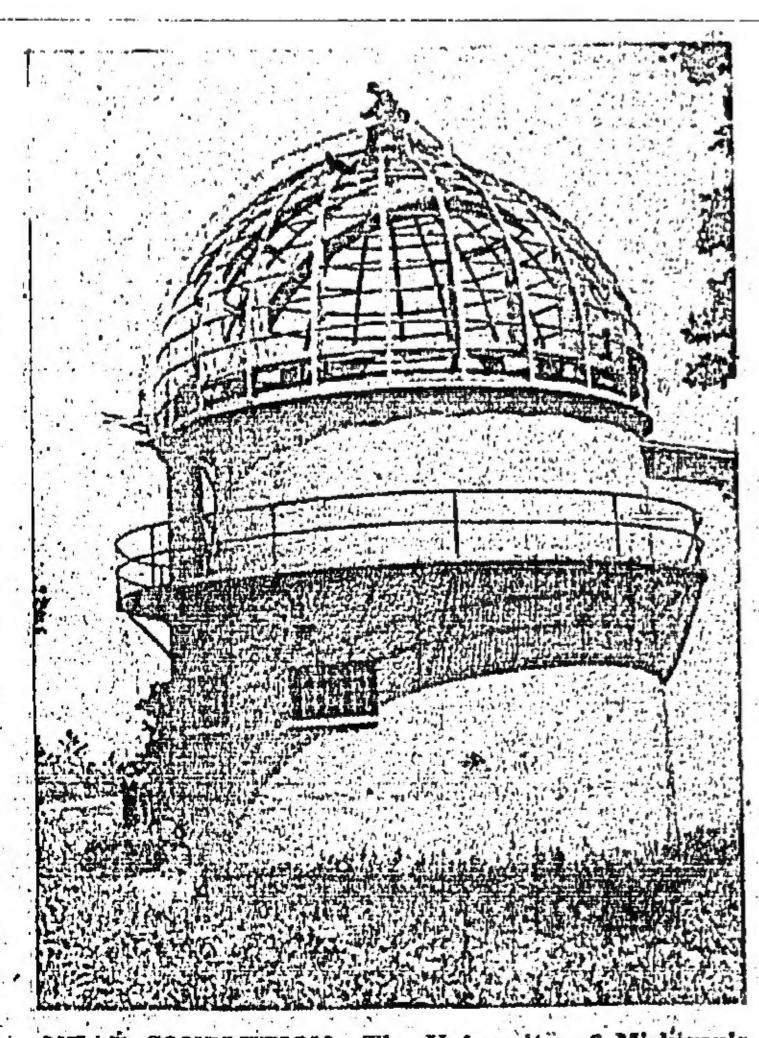

LOOKING UP—This corrugated steel tube into a coal mine near Cumnock, North Carolina, provides a safe entrance, under the river, to the 36-inch vein where 14,450,000 tons out of a total of over 100,000,000 are already completely drilled and mapped. After a 75-year history of failure and tragedy, this mine expects soon to safely produce 500 tons of coal each day.

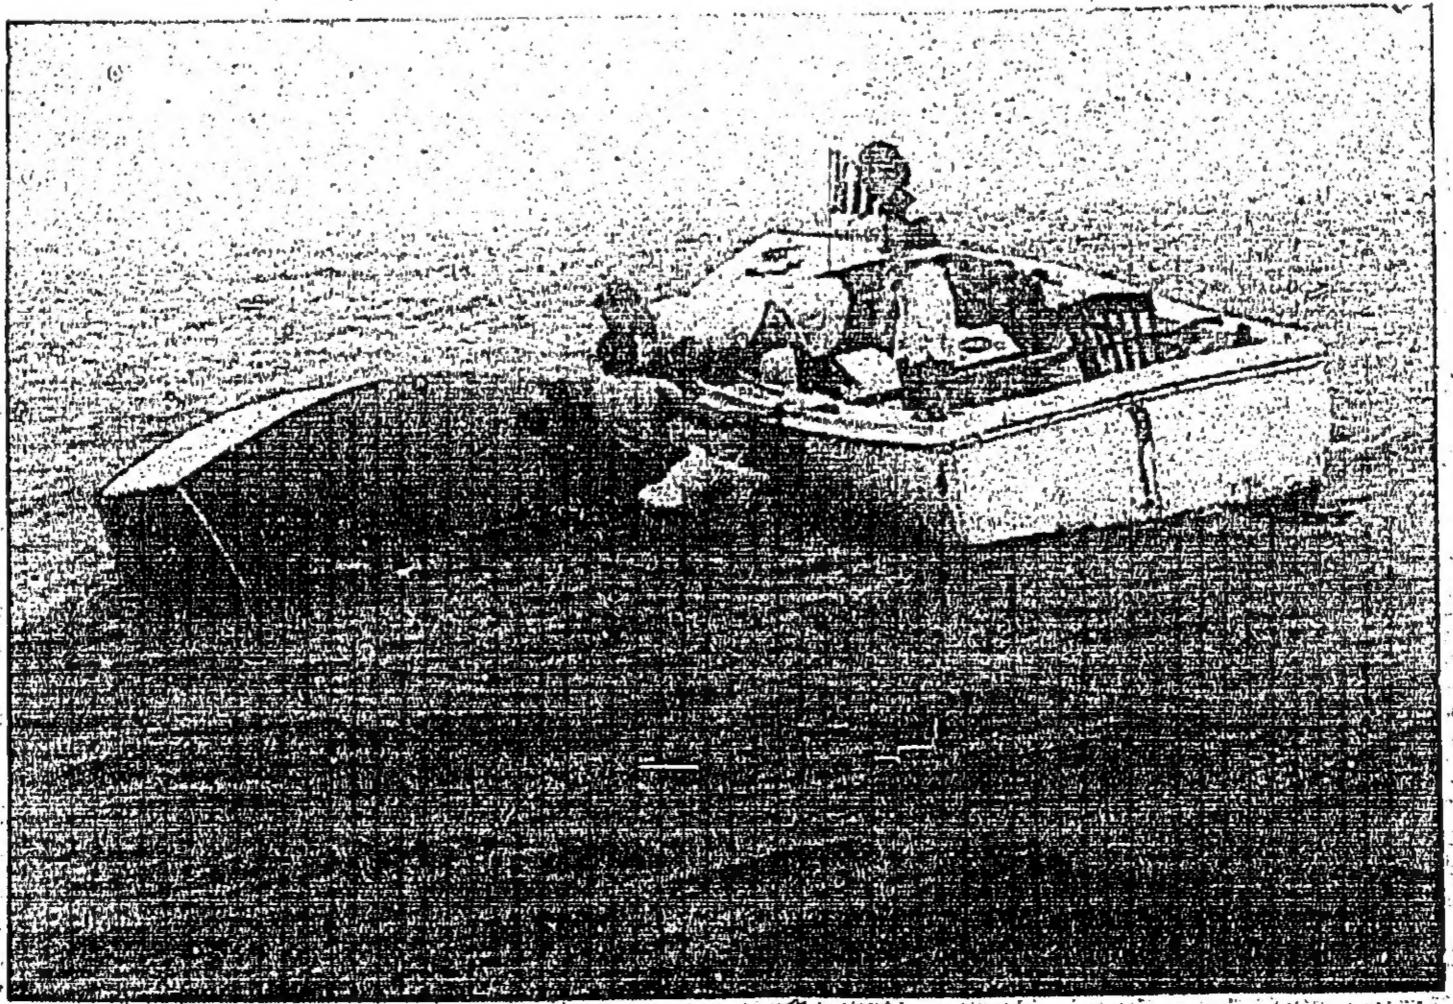

THANKFUL BUTCH—And no wonder he's grateful.
He chased a cat under a sidewalk in St Louis, Missouri, and got stuck. Humano Society officer, Glenn Martin, finally extricated Butch who readily indicated that he knew how lucky he was.

STYLES FOR THE YOUNG—These are sturdy outdoor sweaters of youngsters who play hard. The sleeves are made a little full to allow room for additional clothing as autumn days get crisper. It also helps to keep active elbows from poking out.

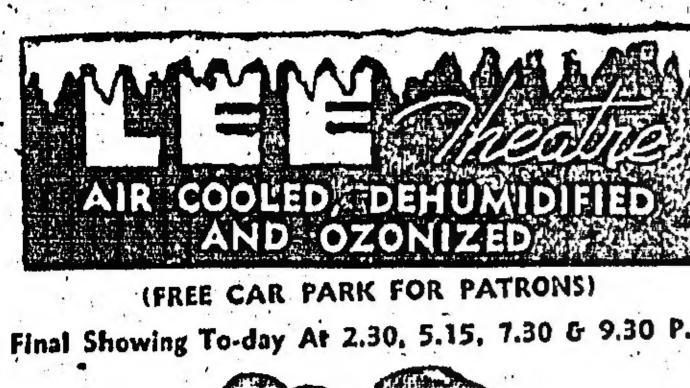

NEAR COMPLETION—The University of Michigan's new observatory at Portage Lake, Michigan, is almost finished. Equipped with a 24-inch Schmidt-type reflecting telescope, it will be used in research on the earth's structure and external galaxies.

SAD ENDING—Unlucky crew members of the Fiesta II, owned by Henry J. Abreu, are rescued after their boat capsized in the first spinnaker run of the International Lightning Championship held in Biscayno Bay, near Miami, Florida. Five boats were swamped when hit by a heavy rain squall.

NEXT HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION OF

Somehow I feel I have seen the future heavyweight Champion of the World, and, glory be, he is British. Earl Walls is a 22 years old, 6ft. 2ins., 131/2 stone Canadian negro of Cherokee Indian extraction, and to me he has got everything except experience. May he be handled rightly.

Of his physical attributes there can be no question. His mental make-up remains to be proved. But at Manchester's Belle Vue I saw him put up as workmanlike a job as I have seen for a long time, barring possibly George Sands' disposal of Dick Turpin.

In 87 seconds Walls reduced what this hard hitting bantam' the Belgian champlon, 15-stone would do to the flyweight. PETER LOVEGROVE DISCUSSES

Championship County Prospects Rugby Union By PETER LOVEGROVE

Main interest of the Rugby Union season before Christmas resides in the County Championship competition which opened on Thursday, October 6, at Bedford, where East Midlands entertained Leicestershire. Between then and December 10, 43 matches will be played all over England and should have yielded the four semifinalists who will fight out the closing stages in the New Year.

The counties are divided into four groups-Northern, Midlands, South-Western and South-Eastern, the latter being sub-divided into two sections, with a "decider" between the winners of each section for a place in the semi-finals. This season, the semi-finals will be fought between the winners of the Northern and South-Eastern groups, and the Midlands and the South-West.

FIRST "PLAY BALL" YELL WASEGYPTIAN

By EDWARD POLLAK

Cairo-The American game of baseball was played by the ancient Egyptians nearly 5,000 years ago, an Egyptian official reports.

They called 'it "logm"-but archaeological findings indicate it was almost exactly the same game in 3,000 BC that thrills millions of Americans every summer today.

Logm had pitchers, catchers and outflelders. Bats were made of palm branches stripped of leaves and baked hard. The balls were made of compressed, baked palm fibres.

SAME PRINCIPLE

The basic principle-was the same: the batter-had to hit the ball and then run round the equivalent of bases. If the fielder tossed the ball back to the pitcher before he scored, the batter was out.

The musical world known him for his association with music since the early days of Hin sentiments also nre well expressed on Christmas cards he manufactures and sells

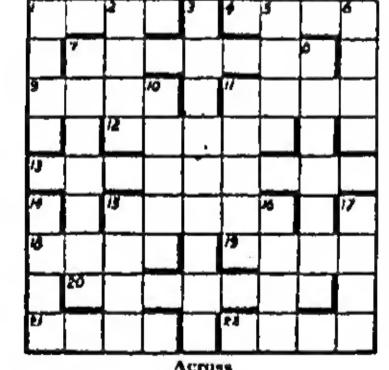

Now that Casher has become a life master, you generally find him playing in a tournament with some friend, necessarily on expert be plays to win. He is strong in expressing to his partners the necessity watching every little thing, during the bidding and the play of the hand.

Today's hand does not have the necessary two and onehalf tricks for an opening bid-Under the point-count system it has only a count of 12, 13 being required. But it is a two major suit hand therefore, should be opened West's first thought is is South on a psychie? A double by West might prove unprofitable.

Casner's recommendation that West should jump to three no trump. He practically has nine tricks in his own hand When South bids four hearts West knows that South is bidding a two-suit hand. It is now a close question whether West should double or bid four no trump. Cosner bid four no
